M. ABID KAMALSYAH

Half Javanese and Gorontaloese, Abid was born in Gorontalo 23 years ago. He lived independently in Depok, where he graduated from Universitas Indonesia specializing in Process Engineering. Abid's passion in environmental management, inspired him to come to Green School where he is an intern for KemBali, working as a project manager. He hopes to continue the success of KemBali's sustainable initiative. He believes his time in Green School will be valuable in training him as a young Indonesian ecopreneur.

RAHMA NUR ADZHANI

Rahma has a passion in energy and women empowerment. In 2013, she initiated a movement called Indonesia Cerdas, a movement that focuses in health and empowerment of women and children in marginalized area, as well as environment. Rahma's dream is to start her own energy social enterprise, and for now she is available full-time in Biobus!

RIKA HARA HAP

Rika comes from North Sumatera, Indonesia. She is currently undergoing her final year study in University of Sumatera Utara, majored in communication science. She is really enthusiastic in helping people and making positive impacts to the environment and community around her. She is interested to working with national or international NGO that focus on humanity, social, environment and development issues. Besides going to university, she also actively involves in environmental organization and civic engagement activities as a volunteer, especially in educational field both in national and international level. She is recently attracted in learning entrepreneurship and products development.

RUSTAMAN ABDUL S

Born and raised in an open minded Sundanese family in Sukabumi, West Java, Rustaman is a persistent young man who loves reading, teaching, and cooking so much. At the age of 16 he moved to Pontianak, West Borneo, to pursue his dream in education. His passion for teaching started when he was in middle school, and inspired him to volunteer at American Corner as a teaching assistant in International Communication program for scholarship students from remote area, as well as a mentor in Community Development Tanjungpura University. Now he is a full intern in Kukul Connection as a Bahasa Indonesia and English teacher.

YOGI ADITYA PUTRA

Passionate about civil society activism, Yogi believes Indonesia could become a great nation by standing on the local wisdom and national character of its own. Growing up in Solo, a city considered as one of Javanese's cultural center inspired his beliefs. Yogi is determined to bring his belief into reality by encouraging a fair, humane, participative, and national character-based development. Through his time in Green School, he hopes to get a deeper understanding of Balinese culture as a part of the rich Indonesian culture and to connect globally with like-minded people within the community. He is also passionate about music, movies and AC Milan.

SANIY AMALIA PRISCILA

Saniy has lived in 6 cities around Indonesia, from Java to Kalimantan. All her life she aspires to inspire people. Saniy is a public relations graduate from Universitas Padjadjaran, Bandung, Indonesia, and wants her presence to be impactful to others. She's been actively involved in environmental activities since 2014 by working with a community called Gerakan Indonesia Diet Kantong Plastik as an educator, where her passion in environmental sustainability has grown ever since. Saniy is always open to learning so she can both improve her skills and become a better person.

AMALIA DINI

Ama was born and raised in South Borneo/ Kalimantan and is studying at the University of Muhammadiyah Malang, East Java majoring in communication science and focusing on public relations. She loves to volunteer in any kind of events that are related to community development. She was volunteering with AIESEC before coming to Green School. Her objective is to increase awareness about health and also entrepreneurship to students from primary school until high school.

SHAFIRA AMERTA (AVI)

Raised in Jakarta, Indonesia, Shafira recently completed her BA in Political Studies and Sociology from the University of Manitoba, Canada. Her passions are sustainable development, Southeast Asia, connecting with people, and of course, story-telling! Shafira's background growing up in multicultural societies has allowed her not only to grow fonder of the unique culture of Indonesia but also to explore the beauty this world has to offer.

HENGKY SOESILO

Hengky Susilo just received his Bachelor in English Education Program of Palangka Raya University. He has come from the heart of Borneo to learn at Green School. He committed to get new experiences as much as he could and bring it back to the society after he finishes his Intern Scholarship program. He is blessed to have Ransel Buku, Green School and some inspiring people who supported him. For him, education is the most important foundation to be built up in his home town and he wishes to create better education for every child in the village too. He is a short story writer, likes to listen to music and travel a lot. One day, he also wishes to be able to get a scholarship and to go abroad.
